

TOPIC 2: THE RECEPTION OFFICE

1. Meaning of Reception Office

The reception office (or reception area) is the part of the organisation where visitors are first received. It is often the first point of contact between the public and the organisation.

2. Meaning of a Receptionist

A receptionist is the person who receives visitors, answers calls, and directs people to the right offices or staff. The receptionist represents the image of the organisation.

3. Importance of a Receptionist

- Creates a good first impression
- Guides visitors and manages appointments
- Handles enquiries and basic information
- Supports communication between visitors and staff
- Helps maintain order and security at the entrance

4. Summary

The reception office and the receptionist are the face of the organisation. A professional reception builds trust and efficiency.

End of Topic 2