Dress neatly and modestly according to the organisation's rules. Avoid overly casual, dirty or revealing clothes. Good grooming (clean hair, nails, shoes) supports a professional image. Some offices require uniforms or formal wear.

- Visitors' book / register
- Appointment diary or schedule
- Message pads / call logs
- Enquiry forms
- Sometimes delivery notes or simple receipts for packages

4. Other Etiquette Points

Be punctual; speak politely; keep confidential information private; do not misuse the phone or internet; keep the workspace tidy; respect colleagues and visitors.

5. Summary

Office etiquette and a suitable dress code present a professional image. Receptionists also handle key documents that support orderly reception work.
