

TOPIC 7: HANDLING OF MAIL

1. Inward Mail and Outward Mail

Inward mail is mail received by the organisation from outside. Outward mail is mail sent out from the organisation to others.

2. Handling Inward Mail (Typical Procedure)

- Receive and sort mail (by department or person).
- Open mail (except marked private/confidential, which may go unopened to the addressee).
- Date-stamp and record in a mail register if required.
- Attach any enclosures and distribute to the right people promptly.

3. Handling Outward Mail

- Ensure letters are correctly addressed, signed and accompanied by enclosures.
- Record in an outward mail book if the organisation uses one.
- Frank or stamp and send by the appropriate channel (post, courier, email).

4. Summary

Proper handling of inward and outward mail ensures that messages reach the right people on time and that records are kept for accountability.
