

TOPIC 8: OFFICE DOCUMENTS

1. Meaning of Office Documents

Office documents are written or printed records used in the day-to-day work of an organisation. They provide evidence of transactions, instructions and communications.

2. Types of Office Documents (Examples)

- Letters and memos
- Invoices, receipts, delivery notes
- Purchase orders and local purchase orders (LPO)
- Credit notes and debit notes
- Reports, minutes of meetings, forms and registers

3. Sales and Purchase Documents

Sales documents (used when selling): quotation, invoice, delivery note, receipt. Purchase documents (used when buying): purchase requisition, purchase order, goods received note. Correct preparation and filing of these documents support accurate accounts and stock control.

4. Preparation and Uses

Documents should be clear, complete and accurate. They are used to request goods, confirm delivery, request payment, prove payment and resolve disputes. Always keep copies for the organisation's records.

5. Summary

Office documents record business activities. Sales and purchase documents in particular help control buying, selling and payment. Accuracy and proper filing are essential.
